

Workshop: How Can I Fund My PhD?

23 November 2016 (Wednesday), 17.15 – 20:45, Lokal International, Giessen

Doing a PhD requires funding. The expenses that PhD students encounter while working on their dissertation can be covered in different ways. There are various sources of funding and scholarships, including university funds and foundations. There are also multiple possibilities of working while studying, within or outside academia. In this workshop, this variety of funding resources and options available for PhD students will be considered in detail: from the application requirements and the timeframe of the application process or the funding period, to the conditions of the funding or finding a job. The participants will have the chance to explain their own living and studying situation, and discuss specific questions with regards to their individual needs.

Lecturer: Teona Micevska is a PhD candidate at the Centre for the Study of Culture (GCSC) at the University of Giessen, and works as event manager at Lokal International, a cooperation project between the University of Giessen and the Studentenwerk Giessen. Originally from Macedonia, she moved to Germany in 2013, in order to do her master studies at the University of Freiburg, funded by a DAAD scholarship.

Registration until Wednesday, November 16 via email obligatory: patrycja.zakrzewska@admin.uni-giessen.de

The following information is required to complete the registration for this workshop:

1. your name
2. your country of origin
3. your field of study
4. stage of your PhD (beginning, middle phase, end phase – writing the thesis, preparing for the defense etc.)
5. Are you a member of the GGL, GGS or GCSC?

Please note that the registration for this workshop is binding!